

CONTENU SONORE

Instruments-Chant:

Foresinger: Sigmundur i Hoyvik

Forme d'expression: When Ólavur Heilagi had brought christianity all over in Norway except to Gudbrandur in Gudbrandsdal, he asked him to become a christian or fight. Gudbrandur told his son to fight, but when he comes with his mento the king, he wants to talk to him personally, and so he persuades him to become a christian. The young man promises to bring his father to christianity, but when the father hears that the son has become a christian, he asks all the people in the valley to take the god Tór and carry him to the king, and while Ólavur Heilagi preaches christianity to Gudbrandur one of Ólavur's men takes an axe and knocks the wooden god down, which was full of rats, and when Gudbrandur saw that he accepted christianity.

TEXTE Ólavur Heilagi built a church in Gudbrandsdal.

Noté par:

Traduit par:

Langue d'origine:

Traduction:

Observations: